Dear Parent/Carer

Since half term, we have seen a significant drop in the number of students that have been completing their Sparx homework. We suspect that this is in part due to the lack of support that we are able to put in place after school with the current increased restrictions.

Starting from next week, we will be sending a text message out to inform you if your child has not completed their homework from the previous week. These messages will be sent on a Thursday and we hope that through a combined effort between school and home, we will start to see an upturn in homework completion.

We also plan to celebrate the many students who have continued to complete their homework to a high standard regularly as we move towards the end of term. This will include those who complete their compulsory tasks promptly, as well as those who do the extra optional/target exercises.

Please do not hesitate to contact me should you have any questions.

Yours sincerely
